U.S. Army armored cavalry has the mission of reconnaissance and security. Unlike armored and infantry units, U.S. Cavalry is organized in Regiments, Squadrons, and Troops which are equivalent to Brigades, Battalions, and Companies respectively. A regiment of armored cavalry, such as the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment (the Black Horse Regiment) in Vietnam, consisted of three full squadrons of armored cavalry. The squadron normally consisted of a headquarters troop, three cavalry troops, a tank company, and an aviation troop..."copied from somewhere"

the reason for a government to exist is to enforce laws and protect peoples rights and freedoms, not tax specific groups more and favor other groups
